

MENTAL HEALTH ISSUES

Persons with mental health problems commit offences. When reported police do not charge them due to their mental state. As such, these persons continue to commit the same offences. Whereas, these persons should be charged, placed before the courts with evidence of their mental state and released into an institution.